

The background features several coffee-related illustrations: coffee beans in the top left, a spoonful of beans in the top right, a carafe of coffee on the left, a bag of beans with a scoop on the bottom left, a boba drink with a straw on the right, and a cup of coffee on a saucer with a spoon in the bottom right.

LET'S LEARN ABOUT COFFEE

Presented by Bright Coffee Shop

www.reallygreatsite.com

AGENDA

1. Sales Trends
2. Location Distribution
3. Product Performance
4. Recommendation

www.reallygreatsite.com

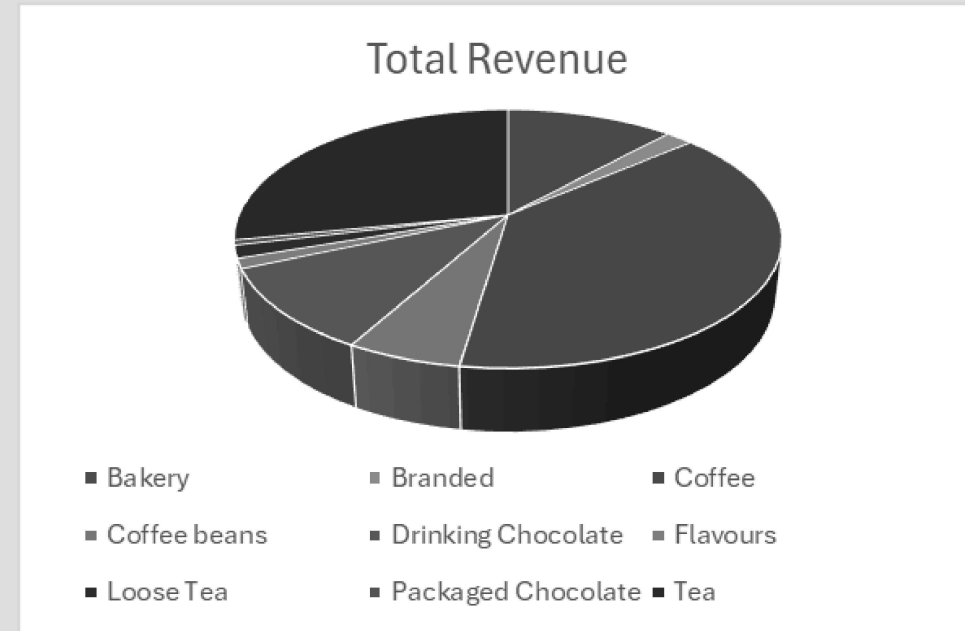

Data analytics for Coffee

Hell's Kitchen Accounts for 40% of our total revenue with most of the revenue generated on Tuesday

Top selling product

Coffee contributes the largest share at 39% followed by tea with 28%. This indicates that coffee is the strongest revenue driver in our portfolio

However, flavors and chocolate appear to be underperforming, which could indicate that they require more attention in terms of promotions

Peak Time for Sales

Morning hours consistently drive the majority of the sales across all the stores, followed by the afternoon hours. Evening sales seem to be least productive time of day for sales.

Recommendations

- Coffee is our primary revenue driver accounting for 39% of total revenue, indicating that we should focus on further developing and promoting the product line.
- Digital marketing a powerful tool that can help drive sales of the underperforming drinking and packaged chocolate.
- Partnering with social media influencers can help drive awareness and interest

THANK YOU

